Every reader will say at once that Mr. Cham berlain has put his defence in the most offensive form. What can be more insulting than to accuse an opponent of hitting below the belt, and of poisoning his arrows? The mixing of the metaphors shows how angry the speaker was, What could be more insulting than to describe him with a sneer as a man of honor and of conscience; meaning that he is neither? What could be more insulting than to say he had trumped up a case and founded it upon garbled extracts and forged quotations? Does Mr. Champerlain really believe that Lord Rosebery did all this knowingly,-that he deliberately quoted as Mr Chamberlain's two passages which he knew were not his,-that he really forged these quotations? If he does, he must also believe him to be not merely a forger but a fool. The forgery was certain to be detected and denounced. What Mr. Chamberlain asks us to believe is that the Prime Minister, for the sake of a momentary triumph before his audience and a momentary triumph, perhaps, in next morning's papers, exposed himself to certain refutation and certain shame so soon as it should please his opponent, who must know where the quotations came from, to expose the trick. Of course, Mr. Chamberlain does not believe anything of the sort. He knows perfectly well how such mistakes happen and how much every public man is in the hands-to use Lord Beaconsfield's words-of the gentlemen who are good enough to assist him in the discharge of his pub-He duties. But the temptation seems to have been irresistible. It may have been irresistible because it was not resisted. Mr. Chamberlain has often shown that he takes pleasure in giving pain when he thinks pain ought to be inflicted. of course he thinks it ought to be. No man appoints himself public executioner from anything but a sense of duty, and chastisement applied from a sense of duty is generally more vindictive and pitiless than any other. The man who applies the lash is so sure he is right, and so sure his victim deserves all he is to get, that he lays It on as hard as he knows how. There is, moreover, such a thing as the intoxication of punishment. "When the Governor once begins to flog, you never know where he will stop," says one of the characters in that grim study of criminal experiences, "His Natural Life," by the late Marcus Clarke. Mr. Chamberlain is a little like the Governor. He hardly limits the number of his lashes. He lacks, to tell the plain truth, and has always lacked, certain instincts of delicacy, of tact, of reserve, and of consideration for others which are ommon to many Englishmen immensely his inferiors in ability:-common, in fact, to most men who in this country attain to high position. Does he forget what Mr. Gladstone once said in the House of Commons upon the Conservative cheers which had greeted Mr. Chamberlain? "I assume that they denoted an enthusiastic approval of his views. I do not imagine that they were inspired by any very extravagant affection for the individual." Mr. Chamberlain has many qualities which entitle him to the respect and regard so freely awarded him. But did he ever ask himself why he is so much more bitterly hated by some of his opponents than any other man of anything like his eminence? If he will read over his Bradford speech in cold blood, and with the same critical acumen which he applies to the sayings of others, a glimmering of the true reason may dawn upon him. But it is rather late in life to expect him to change his manner. G. W. S.

MISS ELEANOR CALHOUN AS HERMIONE. Paris, June 19.-Mr. Eustis, the United States Ambassador, and his family, nearly all the members and attaches of the United States Embassy, and most of the American colony here were present at a ince at the Comedie Parisienne this afterno to witness the performance of Miss Eleanor Caln as Hermione in Racine's "Andromaque." Calhoun gave an admirable impersonation of the Calhoun gave an admirable impersonation of the character. The other leading parts were filled by Paul Mounet as Orestes, Marsy as Pyrrhus and Mme. Vertenil as Andromaque. Miss Calhoun's best efforts were her scene with Pyrrhus in the fourth act, and her soliloquy and final parsage with Orestes in the fifth act. Her first costume was an Indian silk of a pale greenish blue, embroidered with Greek copied from the Aphrodite vase in the Berlin museum, and a gold crown. Her second dress was an ivory-colored silk, embroidered with pale colors interwoven with gold and silver, and a crown of hyscintus and other flowers and leaves.

Miss Calhoun will make a tour of America in the fall, under the management of Hugo Gorlitz.

MR. CLEVELAND BACK AT WORK.

Washington, June 19.-The lighthouse tender Maple, with President Cleveland on board, returned this morning from her cruise down the lower Chesapeake Bay and outside the capes. The President remained on board till the White House carriage and Mr. Thurber arrived, and was then driven to the Executive Mansion, arriving there at 8:45 a m. When the carriage reached the White House the When the carriage reached the White House the President alighted as lightly and firmly as after any of his former fishing excursions, and seemed to be strong again. His face was bronzed, and he was evidently in excellent condition. He has had no recurrence of his aliment, and Dr. O'Relly and no recurrence of his aliment, and Dr. O'Relly thinks he will have none. The party did no fishing the Maple being kept under way all the time. Secretary Lamont joined the President soon after he entered his office, and the business affairs of the Nation were resumed before the President had been in the Executive Mansion an hour.

THE HOUSE AND THE TARIFF BILL.

LOUD MUTTERINGS HEARD ATREADY. From The Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Aiready there are loud mutterings in the House against the Senate bill and threats of radical changes in its schedules. Among the items are free coal and free iron ore, and it will be no surprize if the House shall insist upon such changes as will make the bill altogether unsatisfactory to the Senate again, resulting in the ultimate defeat of the whole measure.

DEPENDING ON THE HOUSE.

From The Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Democrats of the Senate ought to be ashamed of themselves for confessing, as they have done by their course for several weeks past, that they cannot pass the right kind of a bill themselves, though not pass the right kind of a bill themselves, though not pass to rectify the blunders which they are committing and to discharge the duties which they lack like courage to meet. If the Senate persists in thus the courage to meet. If the Senate persists in thus the people will have to hasten the day of its renovation. From The Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE HOPE OF THE COUNTRY.

m The Philadelphia Press. If it shall finally pass the Senate, the hope of the country and the defence of public honor will rest on the House. We take it for granted that the House will repudiate the sugar schedule as it stands. It cannot in common self-respect or decency do less. But that is not enough. A rejection in the House as a preliminary to surrender in the Conference Committee will be idle and vain. It must repudiate to kill!

WILL THE HOUSE SWALLOW IT?

No one knows what will be the outcome of all the agritation. The prevailing Washington belief is that agritation. The prevailing Washington belief is that the Democrats of the House will accept whatever the Inevitable Conference Committee may give the inevitable Conference Committee may give them, being render to pass anything, however bad, them, being render to pass anything, however bad, them, being render to pass anything. On the other hand, some shrewd observers look for a failure of hand, some shrewd observers look for a failure of all tariff legislation, holding that the House will all tariff legislation, holding that the House will not consent to the dictation of the trusts and that the trusts will not let their Democratic Senators pass a bill that is injurious to their interests. From The Hartford Courant.

IS THE RIGHT TO "KICK" LIMITED?

From The San Francisco Call. The House is not bound to recognize the right of the Senate to so change the bill sent to it as to bring it in conflict with the platform. . . Is the right to "kick" limited to half a dozen Senators? May not the House exercise this right in defence of the principles so positively enunciated at Chicago?

DEMOCRACY CANNOT SETTLE IT. From The Springfield Union.

It is now as certain as anything can be that the emocratic party cannot settle the tariff question. hat task must be left to the Republicans, and pro-ection will be an issue in 1895.

Information has been received in this city of the marriage of Mrs. Kate Lowrey, widow of Grosvenor P. Lowrey, a prominent member of the New-York bar, who died a year ago last spring, to Harta Reid, who is said to be an official of the Canadian Government. The wedding took place in Ottawa, Canada, on Saturday. Mrs. Lowrey, while in New-York, a fortnight ago, at the wedding of her step-daughter, Miss Virginia Lowrey, to Frank Pennington Ball, toid some of her intimate friends that she was soon to be married, so that the news of it was not a surprise here. Mrs. Lowrey, born Armour, since the death of Mr. Lowrey has passed most of her time in Canada, her former home, and last winter she met Mr. Reid, whom she knew in her girlhood days, and to whom, it is said, she was engaged to be married. A lovers' quarrel broke off the engagement. Miss Armour, after a few years, became the wife of Mr. Lowrey, who was at the time a widower, and Mr. Reid married a woman who died about two years ago. At the meeting last winter the old courtship was renewed.

RAIN INTERFERES WITH TENNIS.

THE WEST SIDE CLUB'S OPEN TOURNAMENT BE-

GUN-A LARGE AND STRONG ENTRY LIST. The opening day of the West Side Tennis Club's marred by the heavy shower Eighty-ninth-st. and Central Park West were in magnificent condition before the rain, and, with twenty-five of the strongest of the local experts entered in the men's singles, some fine tennis was expected. But, as it turned out, only two courts could be used, and five matches only were played.

The entry list is a remarkably strong one, including such well-known names as W. Gordon Parchading such we ker and Edwin P. Fischer, who have made good records against the foremost players in the coun try; Stephen C. Millett, Calhoun Cragin and John F. Hobart, of the New-York Tennis Club; Dr. William N. Frazer and R. Colwell, jr., of the Kings County Club; Joseph T. McMahon, of the Brooklyn Tennis Club; O. M. Bostwick, Alfred and Arthur Taylor, of the West Side Club; J. P. Paret of the Lenox Club, and E. K. McEnroe, the Hamilton Tennis Club champion.

As usual, none of the stronger players met in the preliminary matches, and Cragin and McMahon put up the best contest of the day. The New-Yorker was a slight favorite, and his hard driving won the first set easily. Then McMahon gan that persistent and accurate lobbing for which he is becoming noted, gathering in all of Cragin's drives and tossing them back to him as fast as they came over the net. This style of play seemed to werry Cragin, and he grew wilder and wilder as the play went on, finally losing the deciding set to love. Alfred Taylor won an uphili game against Fennessey, and Gordon defeated White, though the second set seemed likely to last all night.

though the second set seemed likely to last all night.

During the course of the afternoon the ladies of the club served refreshments to the players and guests under a tent, which had been erected in the centre of the grounds. The ladies' contests were not begun. Miss Atkinson seems likely to win the singles, and the men's singles will probably lie between Parker and Fischer, with Millett as a danserous candidate. The prizes are to be unusually handsome, a gold watch being offered in the men's singles, the scores follow:

HE IS SAID TO HAVE ACCUSED ENGLAND OF DUPLICITY.

A REPORT OF SIR EDWARD MALET'S RESIGNA-THE TROUBLE, IF ANY HAS OCCURRED,

Berlin, June 19 .- It is reported here that Sir Edward Malet, the British Ambassador, has sent his resignation to his Government in London, giving as the reason for his wish to retire that it is impossible for him successfully to represent the interests of England at the German Court, since, owing to recent acts of the British Cabinet, the confidence of the Emperor has been lost. It is said that the Kaiser has bitterly reproached the British Cabinet for taking unfair advantage of his straightforwardness in dealing with England, and has also accused Sir Edward with England, and has also accused SP. Boward of having countenanced the English Cabinet's duplicity. Sir Edward Malet, it is asserted, protested against the accusation, declaring that he was as much surprised as the Kaiser. The Emperor then, according to the report, informed Sir Edward that England could thank herself if henceforth he should reverse the friendly policy of Germany and return to Prince Bismarck's distrust of everything English.

trust of everything English. London, June 19 .- The report telegraphed from Berlin of the resignation of Sir Edward Malet, the British Ambassador to Germany, cannot be confirmed at the Foreign Office. The officials who are accessible there profess to know nothing about it. It is surmised that some trouble has arisen out of the Anglo-Belgian agreement in regard to the Congo frontiers, which has caused friction between the German Foreign Office and the British Ambassador, but the report of the latter's resignation is not generally credited.

London, June 19 .- The retreat of Mr. Gladstone at Dollis Hill was to-day besieged with reporters, anxious to obtain information in regard to the newspaper reports that the ex-Premier had again received an invitation to visit the United States. They were informed that Mr. Gladstone had received no such invitation and knew nothing beyond what he had seen in the papers of any movement in that direction. Mr. Gladstone said that he had several years ago declined an invitation to visit the United States for obvious reasons, the principal one being his advanced age. As it was impossible to improve this condition of things, such an undertaking was out of the question. He resumed that under the circumstances the invitation, if contemplated, was intended to be merely complimentary. Already that principle had applied in the United States, and why not give to it the wider range for which arbitration had prepared the way? Probably, he said, there would never again be a war among English speaking people. The speech was received with enthuslastic cheers.

NORWALK CELEBRATES.

FOUNDERS' DAY FITTINGLY REMEM-BERED BY THE PATRIOTIC CITIZENS.

THE TOWN 244 YEARS OLD-AN INTERESTING COL-LECTION OF REVOLUTIONARY RELICS ON EX-

TO E MARKED. Norwalk, Conn., June 19 (Special).-The old castle of Nuremberg in its palmiest days never contained more emblems of torture than did to-day the ar-mory of this town-emblems of liberty and relics of Revolutionary days To sit in a chair in which Washington sat, to handle a brocaded silk gown which Martha Washington wore and to grasp the sword of Bunker Hill, the original one immortal-ized in song, would make the blood of any one tingle with patriotic pride, even in winter. many men, women and children did so here to-day, with the mercury in the eighties, and even paid for the privilege, for they knew that the money would go to a fund which the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are raising to put monuments and marking places on the historic spots which abound in this neighborhood, and which have connection with the prolonged struggle of the Continental Army. E. J. Hill is the regent of the Norwalk Cha D. A. R., and the relics were in charge of George Washington Cram, who spared neither time nor eloquence in describing their merits to the great crowds who inspected them.

Besides the worthy object which the Daughters of the American Revolution had in getting up the celebration, the date chosen was an auspicious one, for the reason that it was the 244th anniversary of the settlement of Norwalk, which has come to be known as Founders' Day. The Sons of the American Revolution also joined in the celebration, which really began on Sunday, when the pastors of all the churches devoted a part of the day to historic and patriotic addresses.

Early to-day exercises were held at all the schools, at which recitations and essays were submitted by the pupils bearing upon the history of the town. National airs were sung, and then the afternoon the children all marched to the armory in West-ave,, where a meeting was held. Bands were playing and banners flying as they marched along, trim and tidy, and looking even thus early, boys and girls alike, as though they would die for the starry banner which waved its graceful folds from almost every house along the route, A. Blanchard, chairman of the Board of School Visitors, presided at the exercises at the armory. The singing was under the direction of Wigham, principal of the Over River Scho District. George Van Alstyne did the decorations, which were profuse and attractive, and included, besides a wealth of flags and bunting, many paintings in which noted incidents in the life of Wash ington were depicted.

About 3,000 persons were present, and on the platform were many prominent men and women representing the S. A. R. and the D. A. R. The Rev. R. O. Sherwool began the proceedings with prayer, and was followed by the Rev. S. H. Watkins, of Grace Episcopa' Church, who spoke on "Early School Days." The Rev. T. M. O'Brien caused great laughter by likening Norwalk to the ree drop of whiskey an Irishman once got from "You may drink it, Pat," said a Yankee farmer. he Yankee; "it's very old." "Pat" answered, "It seems to me that it's pretty small for its age." The Rev. A. S. Kavanagh, pastor of the South Norwalk Methodist Church, made an interesting speech on "Armories-Old and New." and after the whole audience had sung America the Rev. T. K. Nobie pronounced the hereeling the control of the contr

America the Rev. T. K. Noble pronounced the benediction.

An elaborate programme was carried out in the evening, the exercises being opened with a speech by General D. N. Couch, the president of the day, followed by "The Heavens Are Telling," from "Creation," by the choir of St. Paul's Church. The Rev. Thomas K. Noble made the invocation, and "Columbia" was sung by the choir of Norwalk Methodist and Congregational churches and South Norwalk Baptist and Congregational churches. "Norwalk in Colonial and Revolutionary Times" was spoken of by the Rev. Charles M. Selleck. A. H. Byington made an address on "Norwalk in the Civil War," and the Rev. Dr. S. J. Beard spoke of "Norwalk, Present and Future." The "Hallelujah Chorus," from "The Messiah," was sung by the choir of St. Paul's Church, and the Rev. Dr. D. M. Seward pronounced the benediction.

The celebration will be continued to-morrow.

The most interesting relies which were on view were the ancient littles and geographies loaned by the Rev. W. J. Slocum.

A GOOD JOKE ON P. T. WALL.

HIS APPLICATION FOR THE OFFICE OF DEPUTY

An amusing story was printed yesterday, teiling how Patrick T. Wall, one of the best-known hotel men of this city, had addressed a letter to "Collector Joel B. Erharlt, Custom House, New-York City," presenting an application for the office of Deputy Surveyor, and inclosing a list of friends to whom Mr. Wall said that he had been supported by the printed and chambers of the first support of the city and chambers of the family. The list had the names of Democrats, Republicans and Mugwamps, including President Cleveland, Secretary Lamont, ex-Mayor Grace, ex-Secretary Whitney, Vernon H. Brown, Hermann Oeirichs, Frederic R. Coudert, A. M. Palmer, ex-Attorney-General Rosendale and a score or more others. Names of Tammany men were conspicuously absent. The letter and inclosure went first to the Custom House, but as it was plainly addressed to Joel B. Erhardt, Collector Kilbreth forwarded it to Colonel Erhardt, the former Collector. The latter promptly put Mr. Wall's papers into a fresh envelope and directed it to Collector Kilbreth The latter promptly put Mr. Wall's papers into a fresh envelope and directed it to Collector Kilbreth with a Jocose letter, saying that he was half-inclined to appoint Mr. Wall himself, yet before doing $5 "common courtesy would require that I signify my desire so to do to you," and adding: "If you have no objection, why, on receipt of letters from the gentlemen whose names are on the list attached, I shall arresint him."

Mr. Wall was a good deal astonished yesterday Mr. Wall was a good deal astonished yesterday when he learned that his application for the place of Deputy Surveyor had gone to Mr. Harrison's Republican ex-Collector instead of Mr. Cleveland's Anti-Snapper Collector, and he promptly laid the blame on his typewriter, to whom he had intrusted the addressing of the envelope. "I gave her Collector Kilbreth's name," he explained, "and told her to get his initials from the city directory. She found that Colonel Erhardt had the word collector of after his name and by mistake sent the letter to him. Strange to say Collector Kilbreth's name is not in the directory.

The typewriter must have got hold of an old directory. The last "Trow" was Issued before Mr. Kilbreth's appointment, and gives Francis Hendricks, Mr. Kilbreth's immediate predecessor, as Collector of the Port.

IS IT CARDINAL IRELAND NOW! Minneapolis, June 19.-There is an interesting rumor in circulation in Catholic circles to the effect that Archbishop Ireland has been made a Cardinal. Archbishop Ireland started for New-York to-day, and it is said his mission is of this character. It is known that a secret consistory was held in Rome last night to announce the names of the coming Cardinals, and well-informed clergy believe that Ireland has received notice of his elevation. This report, however, cannot be confirmed to-night. The announcement is made on good authority that the Rev. Charles Koebert, of St. Paul, is to receive the appointment to the bishopric of St. Cloud, rendered vacant by the elevation of the Rev. Father Zardetti as archbishop of Rumania.
